REMEDY TO RESTORE WORLD PROSPERITY SUGGESTED AT MEET

Americans Lay Down Program; Hoover Endorsed

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The United States may come away empty-handed from international political conferences but it appeared today that American business men dominated the International Chamber of Commerce, which has just laid down a new program for restoration of world prosperity.

The program adopted by 800 leading European and American business men, favored American principles as but few international parleys have in the past. Among the victories scored by the American group were:

1.—An endorsement of President Hoover's appeal for reduction of land armaments.

2.—A restatement of America's terms for debt settlements even though the congress suggested a study of the effect of war debts on economic conditions.

3.—A strict silence on immigration, even though European speakers shouted all week for "freedom of emigration," in thinly-veiled attacks on the American restrictive immigration law.

4.—Praised the "flexible tariff provision," incorporated in the Hawley-Smoot tariff law, and appealed to other nations to adopt a like measure.

5.—Inferentially condemned the "dole" and inferentially upheld President Hoover's opposition to the use of federal funds to relieve distress.

6.—Condemned "dumping" and declared embargoes were justified against "dumping" measures, a polite method of endorsing America's embargo against Russian convict labor goods.

7.—Condemned farm export premiums, a nice way of approving the Hoover administration's opposition to the export debenture plan of farm relief.

8.—Approved grain futures exchanges and disapproved of government efforts to regulate exchanges.

There was but one outright criticism of an administration policy in any of the international chamber's recommendations. This was an open disapproval of government efforts to invade grain markets, an indirect assault on the

KING, QUEEN STILL AT ODDS

Reconciliation Of Couple Fails

BUCHAREST, May 11.—Keen disappointment was expressed throughout Roumania today over the apparent breakdown of the attempt at a reconciliation between King Carol II, and his divorced wife, the former Princess Helene of Greece.

An official announcement had stated that Princess Helene would appear with the king in the reviewing stand at the Independence Day celebrations here yesterday, and although a crowd of 100,000 persons waited expectantly, she failed to put in an appearance. The king reviewed a parade of troops alone.

Helene arrived in Bucharest early yesterday from Belgrade, where she held a long conference with Carol's brother-in-law and sister, King Alexander and Queen Marie. Prior to her arrival, a statement by government officials indicated the trip was made as a prelude to a reconciliation.

PYTHON COILY COILS IN CAR

Express Messenger Refuses To Play; Snake Finally Captured Again

CHICAGO, May 11.—An adventurous twenty-two foot python was being jolted over the rails in an express baggage car today, enroute to a snake trainer in Brownsville, Texas, after doing his best to break the tedium of travel between points east of Chicago. Just outside of Marion, O., Mr. Python somehow managed to escape from his crate and decided to do a little coiling around in the coach. He coiled and coiled until he attracted, and riveted, the attention of Mr. Ray Stewart of Jamestown, N. Y., express messenger.

Mr. Stewart let out a whoop, yanked the emergency cord, and leaped behind a very big packing case. Mr. Python apparently wanted to do a little constricting, with Mr. Stewart as the object of his embrace, but his style was cramped.

The train was stopped, the express car opened, and out soared Mr. Stewart. Then the car was quickly closed again, with the reptile still inside. Arrived at Chicago, the train was met by a snake-charming expert of the Lincoln Park Zoo. By using a noose and any number of endearing cajolment, he lured Mr. Python out of the express coach and returned him to his crate. A few hours later, the serpent departed for Brownsville via the Santa Fe. He was not accompanied by Mr. Stewart.

HUNGER MARCHERS PLAN APPEAL TO SOLONS FOR JOBLESS RELIEF

COLUMBUS, O., May 11.—Awakening in beds of hay provided for them at the Ohio State fairgrounds coliseum, 182 "hunger marchers" today awaited their opportunity to appeal to the state legislature for unemployment relief.

Escorted by police and lustily singing "Solidarity Forever," the marchers arrived at their destination—the statehouse—yesterday afternoon.

CHURCH DESTROYED BY FIRE; SEEK CLEW

MONTREAL, May 11.—Authorities here today investigated a cause of a $200,000 fire which destroyed the church of the village of Steepit which is forty-five miles from the Laurentian mountains.

A mysterious telephone call to Father Sinal Barrette by someone who said: "Something is going to happen to the church," was being checked.

The fire, which occurred late Saturday, threatened the village of Steepit. The little church was valued at $200,000 and was insured for $65,000. It was built in 1902.

WEAK-MINDED YOUTH SOUGHT FOR HATCHET MURDERS NEAR CANTON

Couple Found Slain And Robbed; Suspect Farm Hand

CANTON, O., May 11.—A 17-year-old boy, reported to be of subnormal mentality, was hunted today as city police and county authorities launched an investigation of the hatchet murders of a farmer and his wife whose bodies were found in a clothes press at their farm home, six and a half miles southeast of Canton.

The victims of the brutal slayings were Edward B. Thomas, 46, and his wife, Mrs. Ethel R. Thomas, 44. Acting Coroner C. O. Paradis said the couple had been dead for about a week when the bodies were discovered late yesterday.

Robbery evidently was the motive for the murders, police said today. A small sedan, a radio and $100 which Mrs. Thomas was known to have had in her pocketbook, were missing.

Evidence in the cluttered rooms at the farmhouse revealed that Thomas, an invalid, probably had been murdered as he sat in his wheelchair in the kitchen. Mrs. Thomas evidently had fought a desperate battle against their assailant.

The bodies were discovered by John Almsay, a neighbor, who had gone to the farmhouse at the request of the hunted boy's mother to learn the whereabouts of the boy. The youth, police learned, had been employed as a farm hand at the Thomas farm. He has been missing from his home for more than a week.

Almsay entered the house when he received no answer to his knock. He found the kitchen in disorder. A trail of blood on the floor led into a bedroom on the first floor, indicating that the bodies had been dragged across the floor. The bodies were stuffed inside the clothes closet in the bedroom.

The bloodstained hatchet used in the killings was found on the kitchen floor. Mrs. Thomas' empty pocketbook was discovered in a breadbox in the kitchen.

TWO KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Craft Collapses On Attempted Start

POMEROY, O., May 11.—Investigation was conducted today into a plane crash yesterday near New Haven, W. Va., five miles from here, in which two persons were killed.

The victims of the smash-up were J. E. Morrow, 46, of Youngstown, and Miss Frances Miner, 22, of Andover. The accident occurred shortly after the plane had taken off from Parkersburg, W. Va., from New Haven, where it made a forced landing Saturday because of engine trouble.

Witnesses said the plane seemed to have difficulty in taking to the air. Just as it had soared up to about fortyfeet, the craft collapsed. Fire broke out in the plane's wreckage.

Morrow was a flying salesman. He and his girl companion were on a week-end aerial sight-seeing trip. It was said.

MENTAL DISORDER BLAMED FOR DEATH

CHICAGO, May 11.—Doctors today believed that Miss Freda Edwards, 22, who committed suicide last night by taking poison, was a victim of strange mental disorders.

KICK STIRS THINGS

An ill-timed kick is causing moviedom's latest rumpus. Lillian Tashman, above, who is the wife of Edmund Lowe, below, was ordered to appear before the Los Angeles prosecutor because Miss Alona Marlowe, sister of June Marlowe, also of the movies, sought a battery warrant charging that Miss Tashman kicked her out of Lowe's dressing room on the studio lot. Miss Marlowe says the kick was unwarranted because Lowe merely asked her to come in "out of the hot sun."

WALTER A. STRONG, FAMED PUBLISHER, DROPS DEAD SUNDAY

Chicago News Head Summoned When On Golf Links

CHICAGO, May 11.—Leaders in city, state and national affairs today paid tribute to the memory of Walter A. Strong, 47, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, who dropped dead from heart disease at his home yesterday.

Mr. Strong was stricken at his mansion in Winnetka, a suburb of Chicago, while playing five holes of golf. He is survived by the widow and five children.

Besides being a publisher, Mr. Strong was president of the American Opera Co., chairman of the board of the Advertising Federation of America, a director in the audit bureau of circulation, and a member of the Illinois Bar Association.

Mr. Strong was business manager of the News for a number of years before he succeeded the late Victor Lawson, pioneer newspaperman, as publisher. His life was insured for $2,000,000, the newspaper being the beneficiary.

INSTITUTION HERE PRAISED SATURDAY BY MANY SPEAKERS

Budget Approval Is Forecast During Program

Legislative approval of the $1,979,429 budget proposed for the O. S. and S. O. Home for the next two years was forecast by Rep. R. D. Williamson, Greene County, member of the Ohio House finance committee, who appeared on the speaking program at dedicatory exercises for the new $80,000 vocational trades building at the institution Saturday afternoon.

Revealing that the finance committee passed favorably upon the institution's budget requests for 1931-32, Representative Williamson expressed his conviction that nearly every member of the legislature stands ready to vote for the budget in its entirety when the annual appropriation bill is considered at the session which opened Monday.

Presiding at the dedication program, Col. W. T. Amos, Sidney newspaper publisher, president of the Home board of trustees, characterized the erection of the trades building as "another forward step in the growth and development of the state institution."

Emphasizing the fact that the great problem facing the state now is enlargement of the Home to care adequately for orphans and dependent children of veterans of the last war, he said the trustees hope by 1938 to have facilities provided for accommodation of 1,200 children.

Pointing out the institution had reached its present limit, 714, months ago, and that requests for admission of children of World War veterans are being received at the average rate of one a day, the chairman also recalled that previous to 1924, for twenty years, the state legislature had made no appropriation for new building construction at the Home.

The chief address of the occasion was delivered by Dr. Frank D. Slutz, Dayton, recognized authority on vocational guidance.

LEGISLATURE WILL BEGIN TAX SESSION AT CAPITOL MONDAY

Committee To Offer Suggested Bills For New System

COLUMBUS, O., May 11.—Ending a month's recess, the state legislature will return to the state capitol tonight and launch a hunt for $15,000,000 in new tax revenues. Both branches will face the additional problem of agreeing upon a budget for the biennium that will keep state operating costs down to $70,000,000.

Immediately after its arrival the legislature will receive from its special taxation committee a bundle of bills in which it will find suggestions for a new taxation system.

For at least a month the senate and the house are expected to remain here giving consideration to recommendations of the committee.

Public hearings to allow objectors to protest against suggested new methods of taxation will occupy most of the assembly's time during the session.

Other hearings, permitting representatives of state agencies to appear before finance committees of the two houses and explain their demands for increased operating expenses or for new buildings, will be held at regular intervals.

Perfunctory opening ceremonies will be held tonight with Lieut. Gov. William Pickrel (D) of Dayton, presiding in the senate and Speaker Arthur Hamilton (R) of Lebanon, recovered from an illness that caused his collapse on the last day of the regular session, in the chair in the house.

Proposals of the special taxation committee will be sent to the two houses either tonight or tomorrow afternoon.

Patriotism Is Insanity Says Chaplin

Comedian Refuses Performance For Profession

LONDON, May 11.—Patriotism, according to Charles Spencer Chaplin, is "the greatest form of insanity from which the world has ever suffered."

The famous comedian made this statement to a correspondent of the London Daily Express at Juan-les-Pins, France, when asked to explain his refusal to appear at a "royal command" vaudeville performance in London for the benefit of disabled members of the profession.

Instead of a personal appearance, he sent a check for $1,000, which he said was "about as much as I earned in my last two years on the English stage."

Explaining he had never performed on the stage since his entrance into films, Chaplin evoked bitter memories of his theatrical ambitions and struggles in England and then went on to discuss patriotism.

"They say I have a duty to England, but I wonder," he was quoted as saying. "No body wanted me when I slaved and starved in England for a few shillings a week. I had to go to America for my chance and I got it there."

"Patriotism is rampant everywhere and what is going to be the result?" he asked. "Another war. I hope they send old men to the front next time for they are the real criminals of Europe today."

Chaplin said he did not regard the invitation to appear in London as a "royal command," but "merely a request from a music hall manager." He told the interviewer he doesn't "care a hang" whether he ever makes another picture.

Public Service Is Paralyzed; Strike Is Attempted

MADRID, May 11.—Martial law was officially declared in Madrid today as rioting and street disturbances threatened to get beyond control of the civil forces of the new Republican provisional government.

The declaration of martial law followed twenty-four hours of rioting and street demonstrations throughout the city in which at least three or four persons have been killed and many others injured.

The government had called out the civil guard, but hoping to avert the loss of life, had given the gunmen instructions to fire only as a last resort.

Public services in the city were partially paralyzed as trolley car drivers and taxicab chauffeurs quit work, declaring the monarchists had provoked trouble and the workers were now ready to fight.

The disturbances took a turn entirely new to the present political developments when a mob attacked and burned a Jesuit convent in Calle Flor, and severely beat a priest whom they dragged out of the building. The flames spread to neighboring buildings, but the firemen finally brought the blaze under control. All of the occupants of the buildings were rescued.

The civil guard was called out to disperse the mob which, after attacking the convent, paraded the streets with a placard reading:

"Today's specialty — Fillet of Jesuits."

The city was flooded with rumors, many of which were impossible of confirmation. One report stated that the occupants of the convent fired on the mob when the latter threw stones at the cross on the building. Another report said the mob dragged a priest out of the convent and beat him savagely.

No taxicabs or streetcars were running. Workmen paraded the streets and refused to go to work. They declared the monarchists had provoked them by yesterday's monarchistic demonstrations, and that they were now ready for a fight.

Agents of the syndicalists and communists were attempting to organize a general strike, but the powerful General Workers' Union was using every persuasion to get the workers back to work.

Early this morning a hot-headed extremist fired a pistol shot at Senor Castro, a member of the Athenium Club, while the latter was standing on the balcony of the ministry of the interior.

A mob immediately fell upon the man and beat him to death. Senor Castro escaped unhurt. The shooting occurred while a committee from the club was presenting a petition to Miguel Maura, minister of the interior, demanding his resignation for his alleged weakness in dealing with the disorders.

who told the Home students that "how you study is just as important as what you study."

"The new educational thinkers are saying there are six important things we need to learn first of all," the speaker said. "First, is how to keep healthy; second, how to be a good citizen; third, how to choose your vocation wisely; fourth, how to use your leisure time sensibly; fifth, how to live and think to establish a lasting and happy home; sixth, how to keep your faith that life is worth while."

Urging the students to do quality work so that it becomes a habit, Dr. Slutz stressed the point "we must have enthusiasm for what we do."

Appearing on the program as a representative of Governor George White, who could not attend, Dr. John L. Clifton, state director of education, communicated greetings and congratulations on behalf of the state's chief executive, and said the new trades building will mean much to every boy and girl who is privileged to take training within its walls.

E. L. Heusch, supervisor of trades and industries for that division of the state board devoted to vocational education, said the public is rapidly recognizing the equal importance of vocational education with other types of secondary education in the school system and that the state is to be congratulated for providing a proper vocational building—not of the academic type, but the equal in environment, prestige and dignity to that of other types of educational buildings. "Time will prove that the state has made a sound investment in public funds in providing proper facilities for those children who have the ambition to fit themselves for the work of the world," he said.

The new structure, he declared, was a realization of a recommendation made by him in a report after he had investigated the trades at the Home two years ago. Reorganization of the educational and trades program at the Home was undertaken under Dr. Clifton and Mr. Heusch.

"We see in the Home a realization of the hopes and aspirations of the American Legion," asserted John Elden, Cleveland, Ohio, department commander of the Legion, who also spoke briefly. Mrs. Della Moats, Sherwood, O., department president of the Women's Relief Corps, said the W. R. C. is prepared to carry on the work of the G. A. R., which founded the institution.

Other distinguished guests introduced included: Henry C. Shepard, Cleveland, a grandson of General James G. Barnett, Cleveland, a Civil War general and one of the original trustees of the Home, for whom the new trades building has been named; George Robertson, Columbus, president of the Association of Ex-Pupils; J. P. Edwards, Columbus, adjutant of the United States War Veterans; Mrs. Mayne Weidman, Canton, department president, U. S. W. V. auxiliary; W. L. DeWeese, Lima, head of the Ohio Forty and Eight Society, and members of the Home board of trustees. The cadet band provided music preceding the exercises.

The trades building, considered one of the most modern vocational structures in the state, was erected at a cost exceeding $80,000, with an additional $25,000 appropriated for equipment.

A two-story brick structure, it is situated on the slope opposite Hayes cottage. The approximate area of the building is 23,000 square feet. There are eight trade shops with classrooms adjacent for teaching related subjects, this being a new feature in trade building construction. The partitions are of steel and glass construction and if necessary could be moved to permit more room in a shop that might expand.

The upper floor contains the printing trades, mechanical drafting, sheet metal, general and farm shops, and a heat treating room. On the first floor are located the electrical, carpentry, automotive and machine shops. All shops are well equipped with modern machinery for pursuing a high type of trade education. If necessary the building can easily accommodate twice the number of boys now occupying it.

The trade program is under the direction of J. E. Balmer, trades supervisor, and has been progressing satisfactorily for the last two years. He has selected a staff of able mechanics and teachers.

COLUMBUS MAN HURT WHEN AUTO WRECKED

W. K. Fletcher, 214 S. 4th St., Columbus, suffered a painful gash on the neck and his wife, Kathryn, escaped injury when the sedan in which they were riding from Dayton to Columbus skidded on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, went into a ditch and overturned between the Kil Kare Park entrance and Lucas hill Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Fletcher crawled unaided from under the machine and with the assistance of a passing autoist, extricated her husband, who was stunned and was pinned beneath the overturned car.

Fletcher was removed to McClellan Hospital where an examination indicated his injuries were not serious. The auto was being driven at a speed not exceeding thirty miles an hour when the wheel locked or something caused the driver to lose control of the machine, county authorities learned.

REMEDY TO RESTORE WORLD PROSPERITY SUGGESTED AT MEET

federal farm board's efforts to stabilize wheat and cotton prices last year.

At first, it seemed the German and British delegations had scored a great victory in winning an expression from the international chamber for a study of the effect of war debts on international trade. The American delegation however wrote the final draft which was approved, and the Americans wrote a "joker" into it. They not only put the chamber on record as declaring the "integrity of such obligations" was "fundamental to the maintenance of international credit"—a way of saying there can be no cancellation of such debts—but they went further and based an examination of the war debt question on the conditions laid down by the United States at Rome in 1923.

These conditions base war debt payments on the "present and future ability" of the debtor nation to pay, and also call for consideration of the debtor nation's military expenditures. In other words, the Americans put the chamber on record as declaring there can be no downward revision of war debts, unless the debtor nations prove they are not making "excessive military expenditures." It would be difficult for England, France or Italy to prove themselves free of excessive military expenses.

There was one other development of extreme interest to Americans. It was the consensus of opinion among economists that the American farmer must prepare to meet Russian competition in world markets. One expert even declared the American farmer will have to yield the world wheat market within a few years and the world cotton market in the not distant future to cheaper Russian competition. American farmers, except where wheat or cotton may be grown by mechanized and motorized methods, were told to diversify their crops.

The chamber's deliberations appeared to have scored another advance for international trade. The business men of forty-six nations, who attended the congress, united first in condemning economic conferences were a means of destroying national barriers, smashing racial prejudices and insuring the peace of the world.

Members of the Central High School senior class, with teachers acting as chaperones, enjoyed an outing at Lakeside, O., summer resort on Lake Erie, over the weekend. Forty-five persons were in the party, including thirty-eight students and seven teachers.

Making the trip by motor, the party left Xenia Friday afternoon and returned home Sunday evening. Transportation was furnished by the Lang Chevrolet Co. and Bryant Motor Sales.

The students, during the course of the trip, visited numerous places of historical interest, stopping at Marion, O., to inspect the new Harding Memorial, and at Fremont, O., to inspect the Rutherford B. Hayes memorial.

BANK ROBBERIES COSTLY

KANSAS CITY—Bank robberies in the state of Missouri proved costly last year aside from the amount of money taken during the holdups. In a statement given out by the Missouri Bankers' Association thirty-five bank robbers were named, the awards for whose capture totaled $27,500. The rewards were paid out between March 31, 1930 and March 31, 1931.

Congressman Brand gave the chief speech but other addresses were given by Mrs. Mary Kendall, Dayton, president of the auxiliary, who discussed "What Veterans Can Do for the Home," and by Charles J. Heinz, Dayton, a past Ohio department commander of U. S. W. V.

Musical selections by the Home cadet band and bugle corps and by the girls' octette of the Home under the direction of Mrs. Rose Byers, instructor, interspersed the program. J. E. Balmer, supervisor of trades at the institution, also sang several vocal solos. The closing feature of the day was a dress parade by the cadet battalion.

KICKING EPISODE WILL REACH COURT

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 11.—Hollywood's much discussed "battle of the stars" in which Lilyan Tashman, film actress, was reported to have scratched, kicked and beaten Miss Alona Marlowe, 23-year-old actress, on a studio lot, was scheduled for a "retake" in the Los Angeles city prosecutor's office late today.

Deputy City Prosecutor W. C. Reynolds said he wanted to hear all the dialogue and have the action described in detail before deciding whether he would issue a battery complaint against Miss Tashman at the request of Miss Marlowe.

Miss Tashman, wife of Edmund Lowe, film actor, found Miss Marlowe resting in Lowe's bungalow dressing room on the studio lot May 1. Miss Marlowe said Joseph Marchetti, attorney for Miss Marlowe, declared she was severely kicked and beaten. Milton Collins, attorney for Miss Tashman and Lowe, asserted it was "only an argument."

DISAPPOINTMENT SHOWN OVER PLANS TO PAVE WITH MACADAM

Widespread disappointment over the decision of the state highway department to repave three and two-tenths miles of the Dayton-Xenia Pike in Beaver Creek Twp. with an inferior brand of macadam instead of first class concrete was expressed Monday.

Hints that the state department may have practiced false economy since the cost difference between the low bids on first class concrete and third class macadam was only about $4,000 were also heard.

Concrete construction for that portion of the highway to be remodeled had been advocated by County Surveyor W. J. Davis, the board of County Commissioners and by owners of land abutting the stretch of the road to be improved.

County Commissioners revealed Monday they had telephoned O. W. Merrell, state highway director, prior to the recent letting of the contract, informing him of the unanimous local sentiment for concrete construction as opposed to macadam.

That 90 per cent of the property frontage favored concrete was shown in a petition circulated among the interested landowners and later submitted to the highway department.

The Greene County Auto Club and the Xenia Retail Merchants Association had also gone on record in favor of repaving the highway with concrete rather than macadam, it is disclosed.

PLAN PROGRAM FOR DEDICATION

MARION, O., May 11.—One of former President Harding's favorite musical organizations—the Columbus Republican Glee Club—will occupy a principal place on the program for the dedication of the Harding Memorial June 16 under tentative plans to be submitted to President Hoover for his approval this week, it was learned today.

Details of the program were worked out at a meeting between members of the executive committee of the Harding Memorial Association and Joseph N. Frelinghuysen, of Newark, N. J., president of the association.

The program of addresses by President Hoover, former President Coolidge, Governor George White and Frelinghuysen will start at 2 p. m., under tentative plans.

Ceremonies will end in time to allow the President to reach Columbus at 6 p. m. when he is scheduled to review a state parade of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Following a nine days' illness from pneumonia Mrs. Frances A. McCurdy, 55, wife of William McCurdy, died at her home on Dayton St., Yellow Springs, Monday morning at 7 o'clock. She was a member of St. Paul's Church, Yellow Springs.

YOUTH COMPETING FOR SCHOLARSHIP TAKES FIRST TEST

Charles Kersker, Jr., R. R. No. 3, Xenia, son of Charles Kersker, and freshman at Central High School, who is competing for one of the four $6,000 Emily Jane Culver Scholarships which pay all expenses for three years at Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind., took a preliminary test at Roosevelt High School in Dayton Saturday.

The test was administered to contestants in this locality by G. A. Morris and the ranking of the entrants will not be known for several days, local school officials say.

There are eleven other examination centers in Ohio. The ten boys from the state making the highest scores in the preliminary test, which will be graded at Ohio State University, will take a final test at Columbus June 1. One of them will be selected for the scholarship.

The final examination will not only test scholarship, but personality, emotional stability and physical fitness as well.

Three other boys from Michigan, Illinois and Massachusetts will be selected in a like manner. These four will be the first of twelve perpetual nation-wide scholarships to be conducted at the institution. The scholarships have in mind the offering of special opportunity to boys showing brilliant promise, especially in qualities of leadership.

SIAMESE KING HAS CATARACT REMOVED

PURCHASE, N. Y., May 11.—King Prajadhipok of Siam rested today in a darkened room. He must remain there for days and live on a liquid diet. In a month he will be fitted with glasses.

The ruler underwent a successful operation yesterday at the Whitelaw Reid estate, Ophir Hall, for the removal of a cataract in his left eye. The operation was reported skillfully performed and without untoward development. Complete restoration of the king's vision was predicted after the operation.

Four doctors and a medical observer and four nurses were in a room, fitted up as a hospital, when the operation was performed.

Immediately afterward, a cable was sent to far away Bangkok, capital of Siam, telling of the success of the operation.

The king was reported free of pain today.

CLEVELAND, May 11.—Five fires broke out in rapid succession in an apartment house district on the east side here today and threatened the lives of about 100 persons until firemen brought the flames under control.

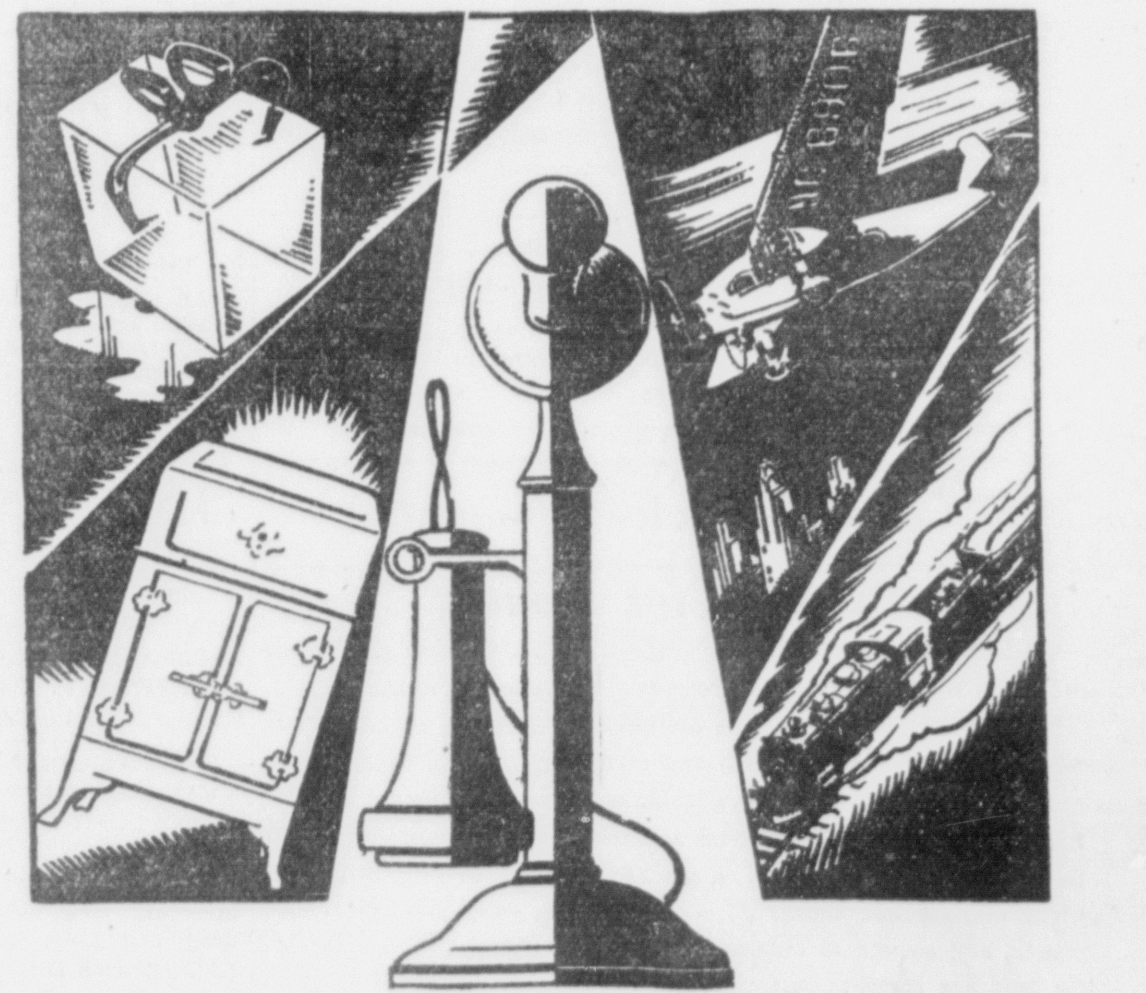

The blazes, police said, were started by a pyromaniac. Evidence of incendiarism was found in each of the flaming apartment buildings according to authorities. All were in the vicinity of a single block.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Yea, if thou criest after knowledge, and liftest up thy voice for understanding; If thou seekest her as silver, and searchest for her as for his treasures; Then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God.—Proverbs, ii, 3-5.

NO "CRAP SHOOTING"

The president of the First National bank of Chicago, Mr. Melvin A. Traylor, urged upon the International Chamber of Commerce in Washington a $10,000 minimum for credit trading on stock exchanges in this country. Whatever may be the merits of this specific proposal, at least Mr. Traylor made out a good case for elevating trading on the floor to a plane higher than "crap-shooting" and for keeping small fry out of the game before they are squeezed out.

The real tragedy of the 1929 crash in Wall street was the universality of it. The big fellows who make a business of speculation and can better stand the loss, are to be pitied sometimes when the market drops out from under them; but the little fellows, who risk their life's savings and lose, although victims of their own cupidity, are much more to be pitied. A legion of the latter scattered throughout this country, went to the wall when the last bull market collapsed. This was one of the features of that catastrophe which distinguished it from all its predecessors.

Although the panic of 1837 was of speculative origin, a far smaller percentage of the people was directly affected by it. The victims then were largely capitalists, and merchants who abstracted money from business to plunge in stocks. The rest of the people went on much as usual. At that time probably not more than 10 per cent of the population was industrialized and thus within the immediate periphery of the gambling mania. The corresponding percentage today is more than 50 per cent. This means that the element most vulnerable to speculative frenzy constitutes a far larger proportion of the whole population than it did even thirty years ago. Also the wide distribution of Liberty bonds during the war gave the whole country "a little learning" about securities—and a little learning is still a dangerous thing. As a result the recent disaster was felt by more people than ever before, with a small proportion left untouched to absorb the shock.

The speculative instinct is human rather than American, although recurring periods of great prosperity in this new country have produced more periods of greater speculative intoxication. A quarter of a century ago a rubber boom in Malaysia swept the China coast and ruined thousands of Chinese and foreigners—and incidentally made a few men rich. A decade ago western Canada was in a frenzy of grain speculation, with brokerage shops springing up like mushrooms, clerks and stenographers taking out their savings, gambling them on wheat and losing; embezzlements, despair, suicides. Cupidity does not learn by experience. The lure of easy money is universal and irresistible by a certain type of mind. Stock and produce exchanges play an important part in our present system of financing; but it is not one of their proper functions according to Mr. Traylor, to lure millions of lambskins to their financial shearing.

The mayor of Reno has been elected on a "Do as you please" platform, which means that you can do as you please if you have the money to pay the price.

Why is it that when eggs are cheap, they do not seem to taste nearly as nice as they do when they are expensive?

China has survived so many cracks that another nick in the southwestern corner of it won't surprise the world.

Other Editorial Thoughts

DESPOILING THE COUNTRY

Lilacs are in blossom just at present. Fruit trees have just ceased to bloom. Where dogwood is found it is also in bloom or nearly through. These are conspicuous examples of floral beauty which a certain type of automobilists likes to snatch and carry home.

Beside the roadside there may often be seen wild flowers of lowlier growth but equally attractive and these too are often the prey of the despoilers of the country. At another season of the year, in the two weeks or so before Christmas, evergreen trees, sometimes of native growth, and sometimes ornamental specimens set out by the owner of the land are likely to suffer.

It occasionally happens that this predatory class goes to the extent of digging up perennials, bulbs or even small shrubs and carrying them home to decorate their own premises. The notion that it is all right to gather the wild flowers from the wayside or from the land of another seems to develop into the notion that it is all right to take any growing thing which one covets no matter where it may be found. Taking bulbs, plants, shrubs or trees from the grounds of another person is plain larceny, although by custom that larceny may be tolerated in case of certain wild things. Taking flowers from roadsides is legally merely taking advantage of the right to gather what one can find from common land, but morally if the result is to spoil the appearance of the roadside for the general public, the offense is just as great.

There are flowers which grow so plentifully that they may be gathered and no harm done. There are flowers which become extinct shortly if they are gathered freely. Breaking branches off dogwood or plum trees may not tend to the extinction of the species but it spoils the beauty of the landscape for others.

To do anything which will injure the beauty of the landscape, to do anything which will help bring about the extinction of a wild flower or shrub, to trespass upon the property of others and without permission take tree or shrub or plant or flower, is distinctly unethical and distinctly bad citizenship, whether the specific act is unlawful or not. And, as a matter of fact, a good deal of this despoiling of the countryside is unlawful, as plainly a matter of theft as picking up from a counter another man's dime or quarter or whatever the money equivalent may be and putting it in one's own pocket.—Springfield Sun.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—In Tammany Town, as in most places hotel bills are due when rendered; and Mine Host in the metropolis has fallen into the engaging custom of rendering his bill every three days, with a "please remit immediately" clause euphemistically woven in the margin.

The assistant manager of a large mid-town caravansary ordered the hotel room of a Montana millionaire locked the other day because the Worthy Brother was delinquent at the cashier's desk.

The man from Montana, with all the money, thereupon proceeded to register disapproval at the top of his voice, which I think was very much out of order.

The mere possession of a little money doesn't relieve a man of the necessity of being just and fair—when he's wrong, of bowing to the inevitable and smothering his chagrin.

WHIMS OF THE FAMOUS

The quaint old fashion of asking celebrities what they'd rather be if they weren't what they are, is not outworn.

Some Busy Baby went among movie stars recently and found that if Adolphe Menjou weren't a screen performer he'd probably be a designer of men's clothes. May Brian would like to be Charles Augustus Lindbergh's wife. If Joe Brown weren't Joe Brown he'd crave to be Babe Ruth. Ronald Colman wishes he'd been born an English country gentleman. Anita Page nurtures the belief that life would have done his best for her had she been cast in the role of newspaper artist. Betty Compson would like to swap places with Jascha Heifitz, the lad who plays the fiddle by the grace of God. Mary Astor thinks Fate played a mean trick on her by not endowing her with the talents of an architect.

And when it came to John Barrymore's turn, Lionel's brother said: "If I were not John Barrymore I should like to be a Japanese fisherman."

Isn't that whimsical?

DIPLOMACY

Years ago, when The Pastor was still wearing three-cornered pants, someone asked old Joe Choate, the statesman, who he'd rather be if he couldn't have been Joe Choate. And Josephus replied:

"Mrs. Choate's second husband."

LOFTY OBSERVATION

Al Smith's Empire State Building was opened to the public the other day. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was there and Al and Jimmy Walker. And they called each other Al and Frank and Jimmy, and everything rolled off so smoothly as the funnelling of a prominent man.

Later in the afternoon John Q. Public and his wife were permitted to take the elevator to the topmost level of the Empire State Building and look over the surrounding country.

It was a foggy afternoon. Two thousand "Constituents" paid a dollar apiece to go to the top and peer into one of the loveliest fogs that ever blanketed Tiger Town.

"Gee," grumbled one "Constituent," "I waited in line an hour, coughed up a buck—ain't they ain't nothin' to see but fawg."

"Cheer up," replied his friend.

"When better fawgs is sold, Al Smith'll sell 'em."

Sidewalks of New York

Who is the author of "Sidewalks of New York"? When was it written?

BIRDS OF PASSAGE

YOUNG BRYAN UNTIEDT OMITS HUMAN INTEREST ON WHITE HOUSE VISIT

WASHINGTON. — While 13-year-old Bryan Untiedt, last March's Colorado blizzard hero, was in Washington recently, his four-day visit at the White House was not described by capital correspondents in anything like as much detail as one naturally would have expected.

Was it? Certainly not. Nor in anything like as much detail as the correspondents wanted to devote to it, either.

The truth is, the correspondents broadcast all the information they could get, besides a lot that they guessed at or invented. The reason there was no more was that the correspondents could discover no more concerning young Bryan's doings here, together with his impressions of the capital's sights and important personalities.

The newspapermen's theory was that the youngster was being steered clear of them at President Hoover's order, to prevent them from doing their best to spoil him by an over-dose of publicity.

It annoyed them considerably; their editors were yelling for better "stories" about Bryan Untiedt, and they were powerless to obtain them.

It was no secret that several of Mr. Hoover's closest advisers also were greatly irked by so much secrecy; they argue that the president would profit politically from the popular association of his personality with more "human interest" incidents and episodes like Bryan's White House visit.

Possibly it is disrespectful to mention it, but a systematic campaign, freely referred to in Washington as "humanizing Hoover," has been in progress for months under the auspices of the group in charge of the executive offices.

Of course the idea is, not that the president needs to be made any more human than he is already, but that the public needs to be brought to an understanding of the genuine humanness of his characteristics.

Not until he finally was on his train, to return to Tower, Colo., did the astute child, in a few parting words, undeceive them—

He was not bottled up by President Hoover at all.

He dodged the Washington correspondents because, before even leaving the west for the capital, he had disposed of all literary rights in his White House experiences to a newspaper man in Denver.

Bryan Untiedt has been mentioned as hard to approach than King Pradjadhipok of Siam.

At any rate, he has outdone Queen Marie of Rumania.

On her visit here in 1926 her Rumanian majesty sold exclusive rights to a Washington photographer (who was permitted to plant a cameraman in her country's legation) to picture her entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, to the Northamptonian's intense indignation at being thus capitalized in his official capacity for Balkan royalty's financial benefit.

However, Queen Marie had to get the then president into her own legation to do it. Young Bryan turned the trick right in the present president's own White House—and by special invitation.

President Hoover was blamed for all this. He was blamed by the correspondents and he was blamed by the discouraged "humanizers."

If the whole outfit had not been so bent on blaming him, perhaps it would have occurred to them that he might not be so much to blame as they supposed he was. It was a thought which surely should have occurred to them when, the day before Bryan left for home, the president actually did send for him, to give out an interview—and Bryan wouldn't come.

He was shy, the reporters said to one another; they ought to have been given a chance to get acquainted with him much earlier.

Mashed Potatoes
Hot Sour Cream Biscuits
Buttered Peas
Celery Hearts
Rose Radishes
Pickled Rings
Tomato Salad
Thin Waters
Milkless Devil's Cake
Ice Cream
Coffee

This is a rather unusual guest dinner. It will serve four.

Pigs in Blankets—Two pounds of round steak, one-fourth pound bacon, one pound mushrooms, two large onions. Wipe steak and cut off rind. Cut in strips about four inches by six inches. Cut bacon about five inches, lay on top of the steak, salt and pepper, roll up and fasten with toothpick. Heat about three tablespoons fat in iron frying pan. Put pigs in to brown, when brown on all sides add a half glass of water. As it cooks down add more water, a little at a time. When they have simmered for one hour slice in two large onions. A half hour later add one pound fresh mushrooms, washed and cut in pieces. Let cook another half hour, then take out pigs and add thickening for gravy. Be sure the pan is always covered tight. Serve in a vegetable dish or deep platter.

Milkless Devil's Cake—One-half cup butter, two cups brown sugar, one-half cup cocoa in one half cup boiling water, one teaspoon soda in one cup boiling water, two cups flour, two eggs. Mix in order given, adding the well beaten eggs last. Bake in two nine-inch layer pans in a moderate oven about 25 minutes.

Suggestions
Soft Custard
Two cups milk, three eggs, four tablespoons granulated sugar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon flavoring. Scald the milk in a double boiler. Beat the eggs slightly. Add the remaining ingredients and stir in the milk. Return to double boiler and stir constantly until custard is thickened sufficiently to coat the spoon. Cool, add flavoring and chill thoroughly.

Pineapple, Prune and Marshmallow Salad—Arrange individual nests of lettuce. Upon the lettuce place a slice of pineapple and top with three cooked prunes, each stuffed with a half marshmallow. Serve with mayonnaise.

Prove "Gas" Simply Air

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The eructation of gas from the stomach—called in private conversation and less elegant terms belching—has not gone without some study by the medical profession.

The explanation of the phenomenon which is held by all orthodox physicians, does not, however, satisfy most patients with this complaint. The patient wants to know where the gas comes from, and is usually indignant when the physician says "It is gas you have swallowed." He is entirely unconscious of swallowing the gas, is usually wedded to a theory that it arises from fermentation of food in his stomach, and is vehement and sincere in stating that, if this trouble came from simply swallowing air, he would stop it and get the trouble over with.

But it appears the doctor is right and has good proof on his side. The experiment has been tried many times, and always with the same result. A belcher, one who eructates gas every ten minutes, and even his best friends will tell him about it, is made to sit with his jaws propped open with a mouth-gag so that he cannot swallow at all. So long as he remains this way he has no gas or fermentation, even if he has just had a meal. Now there is any feeling of accumulation of gas on the stomach which cannot be eructed on account of the gag. A person can belch with the gag in place even if he cannot swallow.

The gas eructed has been analyzed and always found to be air—not gases which might arise from fermenting food. Food seldom forms gases in the process of digestion, either by normal or abnormal digestion, at least in the upper (stomach) portion of the digestive tract. Fermentation may give rise to some gas in the lower bowel, although there is good authority for the statement that even this gas is air absorbed into the bowel from the blood vessels meshed in the intestinal wall.

The swallowing of air is a normal act, accomplished every time even saliva is swallowed. There is always a large gas bubble in the dome of the stomach, an invariable finding in X-ray examinations of the stomach. It probably aids digestion by maintaining the intra-gastric tension.

The loudest and most persistent belchers are either practical jokes or neurotics. They may be unconscious practical jokes, but that is what they are just the same.

The neurotic belcher, convinced that his stomach is the seat of some mysterious chemical experiment, unconsciously gulps down great loads of oxygen and then rumbles it forth again. Such people have been described by Heger as "the most excited, irritable, most tense, and often the most anxious of people, who naturally unconsciously feel suppressed and who wish to externalize or express themselves."

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendingning, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Love and Appreciation

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have a problem which has bothered me for some time. I met a lady not long ago through my teacher. She has inspired me to do my best at all times and has helped me by criticizing my work."

"Now, Miss Lee, this lady is married and has a grown daughter, but I can truthfully say I love them both. What I would like to know is, would it be all right to tell her of my love and great admiration for her help for me? I have heard she cares for me a great deal."

"I am not trying to disrupt her happy family life, but would like to have her understand that she is a wonderful help to me in my everyday problems. She has cheered me up many times when I thought everything had gone wrong."

I think it would be very fine for you to tell this lady what a great help she has been to you and how much you care for and appreciate her. Too many people wait until a friend is dead before they pay tribute.

Very few young men reach what is facetiously called "years of discretion" (does anyone ever reach that age, I wonder?) without falling in love with some older woman who seems to them the embodiment of all that womanhood should be and much more desirable than any young girl could be.

And many older women, who possibly have found that life has not quite fulfilled their dream, have a special love—partly maternal, partly a yearning backward look toward their own youth—for some young man to whom they are friend and counselor.

Where both are well balanced the friendship may continue for years and be a beautiful influence in both lives. Older men and young girls often have this relationship.

Facts On Face Bleaching

By GLADYS GLAD

The dusky damsel is not the only one who is likely to find that new ivory complexion style a trying one.

For unless the skin of her face and neck is of an even coloring, and unless she applies her make-up more carefully and skillfully, the medium blonde, or even the light blonde, is just as likely to have that artificial, whitewashed appearance as her dark-skinned sister.

The fair-haired Lila Hyams is one of those rare blondes who possesses a skin of the hue of creamy camellia petals. But even the girl with the skin coloring like Lila's can acquire that whitewashed look if her neck is not of a corresponding hue. The little lady whose neck is several shades darker than her face will look as if she has taken a nose dive into a flour barrel if she uses the ivory-tinted powder. A dark neck simply doesn't go with an ivory skin. And the darker the neck, the more unnaturally white the face will appear.

In preparing for our new, ivory complexion, therefore, we must first see that our faces and necks match in color. Each time that you apply a bleach to your face, be sure to use it on your neck too. If you neglect it on your neck, its sallowness will betray just where your devoted attention left off. And give especial care to the back of your neck. So often one sees women who apparently have forgotten that their necks have backs.

The back of the neck usually needs more frequent bleaching treatments than the front of the neck. For the friction of collars, whether fur or cloth, tends to darken the skin of that area. And few hats protect the back of the neck from the sun's rays. Use a bleach frequently on the back of the neck. It's not so very difficult. Just be careful not to get any of the bleach into the hair at the nape of your neck, especially if you use peroxide for a bleach.

Skin must be used in the application of the new ivory shade of powder. You should begin to apply it low down on your neck and work up toward your chin, bleaching it from there to the cheeks, nose and forehead. When you have an even coating of the powder over your face and neck, remove any excess, and tone it down with a powder-blending brush or the tips of your fingers. This will give a smooth, even finish to your face and neck.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Superfluous Hair
Uncertain: Superfluous hair may indeed be removed permanently and safely by electrolysis, providing that the work is done by an expert. This method of removal does not cause the growth of lighter hairs.

Skin Bleach
Momet: Lemon juice or dilute peroxide are excellent skin bleaches. Allow either bleach to dry on the skin. Then apply a bit of cold cream to counteract any drying effects.

Editors Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlet, "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each. To cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions of beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

Pick Mate Or Twenty Grand As Derby Winner

THINK EASTERNERS
HAVE BEST CHANCE;
SMALL FIELD SEEN

Insko, Pittsburgher Most Hopeful Of Westerners

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 11.—Unless Mate or Twenty Grand, both easterners, place first in the Kentucky Derby Saturday, there will be one of the most memorable upsets in turf history, according to a consensus of opinion about Louisville today.

Railbirds were almost unanimous in the belief that the fifty-seventh running of the classic will be between Mate and Twenty Grand, which respectively placed first and second in the Preakness last Saturday.

It appeared likely today that the field will consist of no more than thirteen, the smallest in almost a dozen years. There probably will be six easterners and seven westerners.

Besides the Preakness winners, the eastern candidates will include, according to speculation, Surf Board and Anchors Aweigh, both owned by H. H. Whitney, C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, and Ben Block's Morstone. H. H. Whitney also is the owner of Twenty Grand. Mate is owned by A. C. Bostwick. The westerners will probably be Boys Howdy, of the H. C. Hatch stables; Joseph Letter's Prince D'Amour; G. Watkins' Insko; Clock Tower, owned by M. L. Schwartz; Richard Morris' Spanish Bay; Theodore Mueller's Pittsburgher; and Sweep All, owned by Charles Fisher.

Although Twenty Grand was nosed out of the Preakness by Mate, he appears likely to be the "public choice." The reason is that Twenty Grand was badly bumped and knocked off his stride during the race and at one time was blocked by his stablemate, Surf Board.

At present, the west's choice to win honor in the Derby appear to be very slim. One week at this time of year can make a world of difference, however, in the opinion of track veterans. Insko and Pittsburgher are mentioned as among the most hopeful of the westerners.

Doors of the most recently constructed building on the Harvard campus are not equipped with Yale locks. There is not a single "Yale" inside the structure but the entrance doors are still branded. Is this college spirit?

The number of local candidates for the Tall Story Club on the subject of mushroom hunting is increasing, but City Manager Mebb Smith probably wins first prize, not for story telling, but for the biggest specimen of the season. Mebb has a gigantic mushroom, one of the largest ever discovered in this locality, hunters agree. It is of the sponge variety.

Ohmer Tate, former sheriff, desires it to be understood that the managing he is doing for the Downtown softball club this season is by remote control. We might add "the remoter the better" but that would mean another heavy "fine" for us, however, so we will not say it.

With the double-headers piling up thick and fast Xenia softball teams are hoping for a more favorable break from the weather during the remainder of the current season.

At the conclusion of the third week of the schedule, seven post-ponements and one tie game have already made it necessary to play eight double-headers, of which two are on the program in the American League this week.

All five games the first week had to be declared off, one post-ponement and one tie game featured the second week and one of the five scheduled games last week was called off.

The All-Stars, an American League entry, has not played a single game to date and face the prospect of engaging in three straight twin bills during the next three weeks.

The two double-headers this week, both limited to seven innings, will be between Central High and St. Bridgid Tuesday night and between Krippendorf and the All-Stars Thursday night.

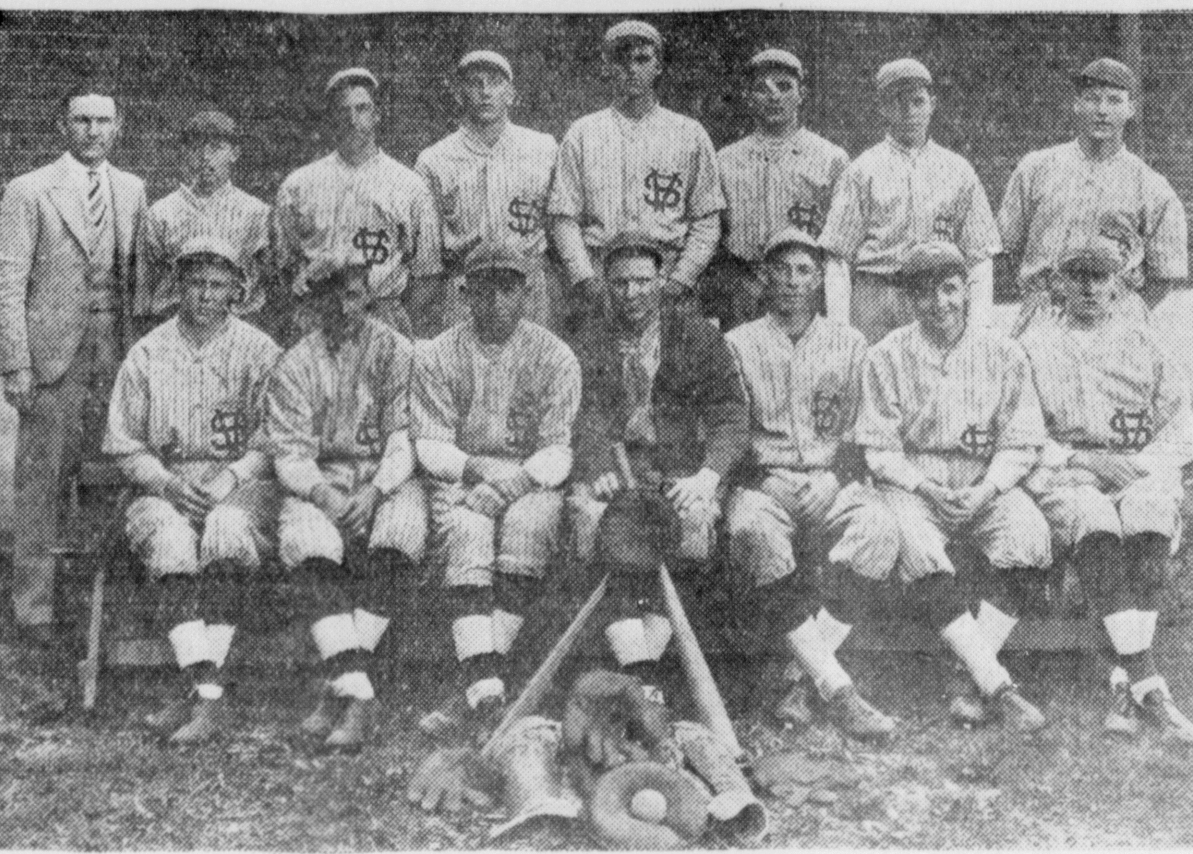

The athletic breach between Harvard and Yale is wider than we had just supposed. The "New Yorker" has discovered something which may or may not have a bearing on the argument between the two colleges on football schedules.

As the supposedly authentic story goes, Harvard has made an important change in its program for new building construction. No longer will the name of Yale be flaunted on door locks. The vile word will henceforth be expunged from specifications for new construction.

Doors of the most recently constructed building on the Harvard campus are not equipped with Yale locks. There is not a single "Yale" inside the structure but the entrance doors are still branded. Is this college spirit?

HACK WILSON AND HARTNETT OF CUBS ARE BENCHED BY HORNSBY

NEW YORK, May 11.—Hack Wilson, Chicago Cubs outfielder, who led both major leagues in the home run department last season, will be benched under drastic changes in the working personnel announced today by Manager Rogers Hornsby.

Gabby Hartnett, hard hitting catcher, also will be affected by the shift.

Hornsby in giving out the news concerning the benching of Wilson said:

"Hack has not been hitting this spring and maybe a rest will do him good. (Hack's hitting .271.) His fielding has fallen off with his batting and we need somebody who can go and get 'em."

Johnny Moore will replace Wilson in center field, Hornsby said.

Wilson was surprised this morning when informed that Manager Hornsby intended to bench him. He said Hornsby had not told him of the move—as yet.

"I'm in a slump; I can't get going," said Wilson. "Maybe a lay off will do me good."

Wilson denied there is any lack of harmony on the ball club. "Hornsby is a good manager—there's nothing between Rog and I."

Hornsby said he probably will come back swinging free and easy and be his own self. He got off to a bad start last season, but he has been pressing too hard.

Carl Grace will replace Hartnett, whose hard hitting the first part of the season caused fans to pick him as the leading 1931 home run hitter.

"Hartnett seemed to have lost his batting eye temporarily," Hornsby said.

Here's Harper's story, briefly: Jess was born some forty-eight years ago on a farm in DeKalb, Illinois. At the proper age he entered Morgan Park academy and played halfback on that preparatory school's eleven. Leaving school he got a job in one of the huge Chicago meat packing plants to earn college money.

Then he entered the University of Chicago. He was a crackerjack ball player in college, but he also wanted to play football. Though he was rather light for the gridiron Jess, in his senior year, played on a championship Chicago eleven at end and halfback and, on occasion, understudied the great Ekersall at quarter.

Leaving college he got a job as a salesman for geographies and maps. In 1906 he became athletic director of Alma College. His success gave him promotion in 1909 when he took over administration of athletics at Wabash College. His great success as football coach at Wabash soon attracted attention. His teams beat great Purdue three times in four games. Notre Dame asked him to assume charge of that school's football destinies in 1913 and he accepted.

To his trained eye the ability of two of his players, Knute Rockne and Gus Dorais, was immediately apparent. He encouraged their practice of their favorite play—the forward pass. That play upset a fine Army team. Notre Dame, Harper, Rockne and Dorais became famous overnight—and through the same incident.

Another Father now, more strong than I,
Has borne you voiceless to your dear blue sky.
—George P. Lathrop (1881-1895)

HORNSBY INJURED

NEW YORK, May 11.—Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs, was on the injured list today. He is suffering from a strained thigh muscle. He denied the injury was caused from his old ailments and said it was a minor matter which would mend quickly.

The Rajah thought he hurt himself in Saturday's game with the Giants. He did not play Sunday, Clarence Blair taking his place at second base.

LANG FALCONS WILL TACKLE SHROYERS

Inaugurating its annual inter-city football competition for 1931, the Lang Chevrolet Co. 1930 city champions and present leaders of the National League, will play the famous William A. Shroyer's Sons team of Dayton in an exhibition game Tuesday night on the Washington Park diamond.

Langs engaged in nearly twenty inter-city contests with football clubs from Dayton, Springfield, Wilmington and Washington C. H. last year, winning a majority of the tilts, but Manager Bill Baxley expects to schedule a lesser number of games with out-of-town teams this summer.

LEARN QUEEN MARIE HURT IN ACCIDENT

BERLIN, May 11.—The newspaper Tempo today received a dispatch from Milan that Dowager Queen Marie of Roumania was seriously injured near Bellagio, Italy, when she slipped and fell while sightseeing there.

The accident occurred in a mountain gorge near Bellagio, the dispatch said. The Dowager Queen attempted to climb a ladder to the top of the gorge for a better view, but missed one of the rungs of the ladder and fell heavily.

GAME POSTPONED

A baseball game between the Antioch and Cedarville College nines, scheduled for Saturday afternoon at Yellow Springs, was postponed on account of rain. No date has been decided upon for playing off the contest. Cedarville has a return game with Wilberforce on the latter's diamond Friday this week.

MERCHANTS IDLE

Every other week this spring rainy weather has prevented the Xenia Merchants from engaging in scheduled Sunday baseball contests at Washington Park. The Merchants won their first practice game, were idle the next week, then defeated the Grismer Coals of Dayton, and on Sunday afternoon it was their turn to be idle once more. Adverse weather made it necessary to postpone a scheduled contest with the Dayton White Sox.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 11.—Stocks in all sections of the listed market this morning followed the irregularly downward course with which Saturday's short session was brought to close. J. I. # The Theater

Visions of a lazy vacation on his yacht were broken up for Dick Arlen when a 4 a. m. studio summons brought him back from Catalina to play opposite Peggy Shannon in "The Secret Call."

Harassed officials are hoping now that the picture will get under way and are bending every effort to familiarize the picture public with Miss Shannon, the red-headed newcomer from Broadway, who will pinch-hit for Clara Bow.

Dick was undoubtedly called in because the picture has to have a ready-made screen name to draw fans to the box office. Eugene Pallette, a dependable comedian, has also been added to the cast.

Director Stuart Walker is certainly getting his baptism of fire in this film. He is the same Walker who is head of the Stuart Walker Players, a stock group that has become popular in various cities.

Walker left his company in Cincinnati to take the assignment as director of Miss Bow. He was reported rehearsing her a week ago Sunday when she had her nervous collapse, and wrapped a mirror around his head. This Walker denies.

Miss Shannon is getting one of those kinds of breaks you read about. She was signed along with four other stage girls to take the place of Jean Arthur, Mary Brian and Fay Wray, who have not been given new contracts by Paramount, and was assigned to understudy the Bow. When the "Bow broke" she got her job—just like that. She was born in Pine Bluff, Ark., and began her stage career in stock in Brooklyn, which was Miss Bow's starting place also.

Like so many Broadway players who appear on the stage on the West coast, Erin O'Brien Moore, heroine of "Street Scene," will remain there under a Metro contract after her play's run at San Francisco. She is the daughter of O.

Brian Moore, famous Washington newspaper correspondent, who became known as Grover Cleveland's mouthpiece. He later became editor of the Tucson, Ariz., Citizen. His daughter, Erin, played in "The Devil's Disciple" on Broadway and has been two and one-half years in "Street Scene."

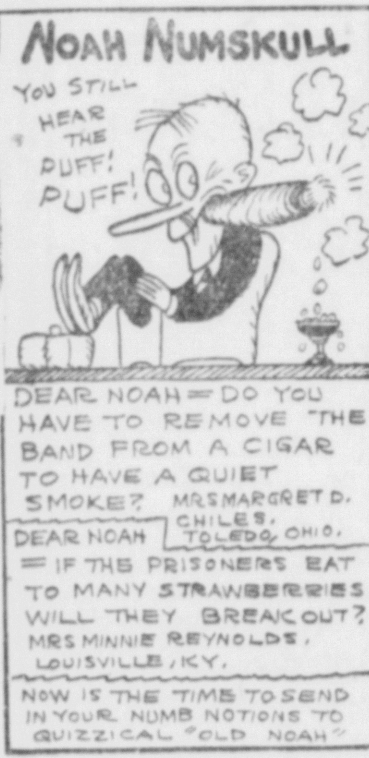

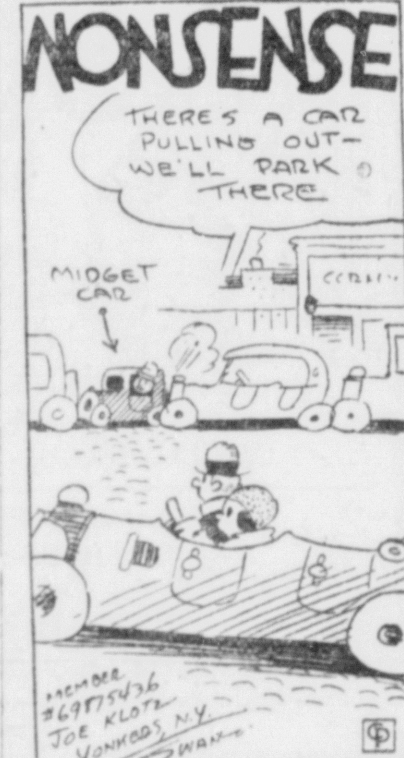

The postponement of "Over The Hill" at Fox will release Henry King to direct Janet Gaynor and Charlie Farrell in "Merely Mary Ann" which goes into production at once because Fox must have four film a year co-starring the popular team and Janet's appendicitis operation delayed matters. After completing "Merely Mary Ann", sometime next month, King will resume work on "Over the Hill." Marguerite Churchill has been chosen for a prominent part in this piece along with Virginia Sale, comedienne and blonde Dixie Lee. Gaynor is now working on "Daddy Long Legs."

OHIO WILL RECEIVE ENOUGH RAINFALL SAYS WEATHER MAN

COLUMBUS, O., May 11.—Belief that Ohio will receive sufficient rainfall this year for all agricultural purposes was voiced today by William H. Alexander, chief of the local United States weather bureau.

"We have no reason to anticipate a recurrence of the severity which characterized last year's drought period in Ohio," Alexander said.

"While this year's rainfall probably will not be up to normal, we believe its distribution will be general throughout the state and in sufficient amount to serve agricultural purposes.

"The rainfall this year, however, may not be sufficient to restore the usual underground supply," Alexander continued. "This supply may not reach the normal stage for a year or two yet. Wells and springs, probably, will continue to show a shortage of water throughout this year. We expect that there will be sufficient surface moisture to raise crops throughout the state this year.

"The outlook for Ohio crops, at this moment, could not be finer," he said.

OLDEST CLOCK IN OHIO STILL WORKS

RAVENNA, O., May 11.—C. W. Morton of Ravenna, has advanced the claim of possessing the oldest clock in the state which still keeps accurate time.

The clock, of the grandfather variety, is 206 years old, according to its owner. Its workings are entirely of brass. They operate perfectly, Morton claims.

The Morton family first came into possession of the heirloom in 1800 when it was 75 years old, according to records of the makers, Chisholm and Humphries, of Scotland.

CROSS-EYED CONFESSIONS

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

— One of the handsomest looking burglars I have ever seen.

While most wives are finding fault with their mates, I think it only fair to my husband to let everybody know that with a few exceptions, I am the happiest woman in this little town of 115 people. I never knew so much bliss could be possible and I owe it all to my Pekingese dog, but I will come to that later.

When I was a young girl of fourteen I had a very disastrous love affair, my fiancé deserting me at the altar for his wife and children in a nearby village. Of course, he had told me he was married, but I never dreamed he took his family seriously.

Through mutual friends, I afterwards discovered that all the time he was buying food and clothing for his children and also supplying his wife with an occasional knick-knack.

'Twas a Foggy Night
This horrible deception went on for seventeen years and I never suspected him until one day it was foggy and as he had no light on his bicycle he had to spend the night at my house.

Owing to a little misunderstanding with the furniture company we were practically out of beds and he had to sleep with my father. Dad, a chronic sufferer from insomnia, stayed awake and heard my fiancé talking in his sleep.

All night long he kept mentioning the name of Edith, and you can't blame my father for getting suspicious. Of course, my name is Edith, too, but I spell it Edythe. Why We Have Breakfast
The next morning dad came right out and accused him at the breakfast table. (Whenever we had overnight guests, we always gave them breakfast, as we never liked to let anybody walk out of our house on an empty stomach.)

This made my fiancé's blood boil, and he accused me of sending spies to bed with him. My blood began to boil, too, and I brought to a close an engagement that had lasted for seventeen years. With a broken heart, and through a veil of tears, I told him that our betrothal was at an end and released him from the solitaire which he was on the verge of buying me.

Broken hearted, I decided to leave home and get away from all my friends and relatives, so I moved into a house around the corner which belonged to my father. It wasn't much of a house. It had no windows or roof, but dad had bought it for a rainy day. A Long, Long Time with my faithful Pekingese dog, Herman. It's a terrible thing for one who has been used to love and affection to remain in seclusion for fifteen years. The monotony of it was becoming unbearable, when one day the house caught on fire and I was insulted by a couple of the firemen.

This gave me a new lease on life, and I used to set the house on fire every week until the firemen began to get bored. My father had now died and left me quite a fortune in money and jewels. Rather than trust a safe deposit box, I kept the cash and diamonds in one of my fiancé's socks, and, strangely enough, it was one of the socks that had carried his feet to my rival's house.

I hated the socks for this, with a hate that only thirty-two years of loathing can bring. Many a time I wished that his foot could be in that sock again, so that I could crush the ankle as he had broken my heart.

Will Power Does It
One night, having a bad case of indigestion from eating some slightly spoiled shrimps, I went to bed early. Using a little will power, I succeeded in getting my mind off my stomach and fell asleep.

I don't believe I had been asleep an hour when I heard some barking, followed immediately by growling. With a start, I sat up, and lo and behold my faithful Pekingese was dragging a burglar from under the bed.

As the dog's teeth were bad and I didn't want him to strain them, I helped him pull. We both tugged for over fifteen minutes, but our efforts were rewarded, and we dragged into the middle of the floor one of the handsomest-looking burglars I have ever seen.

Having a very agile mind, I set Herman's teeth in the intruder's leg while I reached for the telephone. In less than half an hour my telephone call was answered by a knock at the door. I opened it, and in walked the minister that I had sent for.

Love Me—or Die!
To make a long story short, I married the burglar on the spot. A revolver was in my hand and one in the minister's. The burglar looked up into my eyes and realized it was a case of love at first sight.

This was last night, and our marriage has turned out to be one of the happiest unions in the world. After all these years of waiting, I have been rewarded with a husband.

While my personality may have something to do with it, my husband and I both agree that we owe everything to my Pekingese dog who dragged him out from under the bed.

WATER FOUNTAIN PASSES FROM SCENE

WOOSTER, O., May 11.—One of the city's prized landmarks, an ornamental water fountain which for years stood at the intersection of Beaver and Spring Streets, has been swept into oblivion by the onward rush of modernism.

The fountain, a gift to the city from E. M. Quimby, served as a drinking fountain and watering trough. It had several spouts for drinking purposes, a large bowl for horses and a smaller bowl nearby for other animals. When the street corner was widened, the Quimby family moved the landmark to the family estate where it now serves as a landscape feature.

A "GHOST CITY"

Of the hundreds who made Dedrick their headquarters during the active days in the Old Globe and Chloride-Bailey mines, only four remain, according to M. F. Oorth, the Dedrick postmaster. He declares there is no longer much use of the mail carrier making three trips weekly to his office.

McCORMICK-DEERING SERVICE — Always Ready When You Need It

YOUR community is served by a well-established McCormick-Deering dealer, as is practically every farming community in the land. His stocks and service are backed up by this large, permanently established International Harvester branch house right here in your own section. In McCormick-Deering dealers' stores the repair bins are well stocked with genuine IHC repair parts. Thousands of these dealers maintain completely equipped service stations, offering factory-standard service on all International Harvester equipment. Additional service stations are being established as rapidly as they are justified by business in the community.

As a direct result, McCormick-Deering service is better today than it was last year or 10 years ago; our resources and reputation are your guarantee that it will be still better when the tractor or any other machine you buy today is 10 years old.

It is our business to protect you in this way, and we take our obligation seriously. It is your business to buy where you get the greatest value; not just the day you sign the order, but through every day and every year you rely on your purchase for cost-reducing work in your fields.

The lack of a small $1 repair part can easily cost you $10 or $100 in lost labor or delayed work, for time flies in the producing season and Nature waits on no man. Your men cost you money when they are idle, the same as when they are working. When you need service on a farm tractor or any other machine you need it quick. International Harvester knows this out of 100 years of experience with farm operating equipment and maintains complete service to back up every tractor and machine bearing the McCormick-Deering or International name.

Keep this superior service in mind when you select new power or equipment with which to reduce your crop production costs. Compare McCormick-Deering tractors and machines with any or all others—weighing one feature against another and one quality against another—then you will be doubly glad to buy your equipment where you can get the absolute assurance of good, quick, convenient service which is offered you by this International Harvester branch and the McCormick-Deering dealer serving your community.

Farmall Savings Investment Plan:

Ask the McCormick-Deering dealer for details of this new plan under which you or any other responsible farmer can purchase a Farmall and Farmall equipment now and meet the first payment this fall with just a part of the savings made possible by the new equipment in the production of your corn crop, with two years in which to pay the balance.
